November 4, 2013 – The Union County Public Library will be hosting an Authors Alley, a local authors' night, at the Monroe Library on November 14, 2013 from 6:00 pm to 8:00 pm. Several authors from Union County and the surrounding area will be present. The authors will be available to discuss their works, the writing process, and will sell copies of their published works in an informal setting in the main room of the library.

Several genres will be represented by the local authors including women's fiction, science fiction, and children's literature. Nationally recognized Christian fiction author, Amy Clipston will be one of the authors present. Al Bigley, a commercial artist and illustrator, will be on hand to autograph prints of one of his newest graphics. His graphic has been chosen as of the design for a new Union County Public Library card. The copies will be free and provided by the library.

The program is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Shelley Fearn, Reader's Services Library at 704-283-8184 ext. 241. The Monroe Library is the main library of the Union County Public Library. It is located at 316 East Windsor Street in Monroe.
