The Outstanding Register of Deeds award was presented to Crump by Neil Emory of the North Carolina Association of County Commissioners. This award is designed to recognize someone who has given an extraordinary effort on behalf of the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds during the year and is voted on by members of the association.

The Eunice Ayers Distinguished Service Award is presented to a Register of Deeds with at least five years of service as an elected Register of Deeds; a well-documented record of accomplishments within the Register of Deeds office; achievements in other areas of importance in county, state, or national government in which the recipient has been active; service in a leadership capacity in one or more offices of the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds, such as district chair, committee chairperson, or legislative representative, or any of the elected offices of the executive committee, or other selected or appointed positions within the state association or a national association; and such intangible qualities as leadership, humanitarianism, spirit, good humor, integrity, perseverance, and long-term dedication.

"I am very thankful that I was given the opportunity to serve as president of the North Carolina Association of Registers of Deeds this past year, and I took great pride in representing Union County," Crump said.
