Department Mission

The NC Cooperative Extension Service is NC State's largest local and statewide outreach provider delivering research-based agricultural, food, and youth programs that create economic, societal, and intellectual prosperity for all North Carolinians.

Department Services Provided

NCSU was established under the auspices of the federal Morrill Act of 1862, which allowed the US government to donate federally owned land to the states for purpose of establishing colleges to teach agriculture and the mechanic arts. The 1914 passage of the Smith-Lever Act created an educational partnership, now North Carolina Cooperative Extension System.

The Cooperative Extension connects farmers, agribusinesses, and communities with research-based information and technology. North Carolina State University focuses its efforts on agricultural research to solve the challenges facing today's agribusiness. The Cooperative Extension delivers this research directly into the hands of Union County farmers, helping them find everyday solutions through application. In addition, the Extension provides a wealth of educational programs addressing public health issues, improving economic well-being, and helping people make healthier and better-informed decisions. These range from local foods, food safety, and food preservation to gardening and environmental efforts. The 4-H is the largest youth development organization in North Carolina; each year, hundreds of thousands of young people learn the skills to succeed through educational programs and camps.

Department FY 2020 Discussion

The Cooperative Extension Division maintains the goal of delivering high quality education programs to the residents of Union County that enhance their livelihood and lives. The power of the programs comes from the staff that serves the community, their ability to identify, with resident input, the needs and in turn develop programs to address those issues. Agent and volunteer staff provide face-to-face service to nearly 29,000 individuals annually bringing the land grant university system to the people of Union County. The goal is to continue to serve the residents with well-trained staff that is capable and empowered for the tasks.
